Justice Department,

Please, please, please don't let Microsoft get away with just a slap on the wrist. Any remedy for future behavior should be paired with some sort of penalty for past 'bad' behavior. I am a concerned private citizen who uses a computer at home and who is a web developer at work. I truly believe that breaking up Microsoft into separate companies (one for the Windows operating system, and one for applications), along with a huge fine for past aggressions is a fair remedy.

Thank You,
